All works and schedules are subject to change.

Course Overview

In this course, students study a wide range of literary and non-literary texts in a variety of media. By examining communicative acts across literary form and textual type alongside appropriate secondary readings, students will investigate the nature of language itself and the ways in which it shapes and is influenced by identity and culture. Approaches to study in the course are wide-ranging and can include literary theory, sociolinguistics, media studies, and critical discourse analysis.

What students will learn

- The complex and dynamic nature of language and both its practical and aesthetic dimensions.
- The crucial role language plays in communication, reflecting experience, and shaping the world.
- Their own roles as producers of language, developing productive skills.
- How language choices, text types, literary forms, and contextual elements affect meaning.
- Their own interpretations and the critical perspectives of others, exploring how positions are shaped by cultural belief systems.
- How texts and their visual and audio elements work together to influence audiences.

IB Concepts & Global Issues — Course Mapping

Every literary work and non-literary text in this course connects to at least one IB course concept and one Global Issue Field of Inquiry. This mapping supports unit planning, IO preparation (where students must analyse a global issue across two texts), and Paper 2 comparative essay practice.

The 7 IB Course Concepts

- Identity — how texts construct, perform, and challenge personal, cultural, and national identities.
- Culture — the social, historical, and ideological contexts that shape and are shaped by texts.
- Creativity — the artistic choices and innovation of writers and producers across literary and non-literary forms.
- Communication — how texts construct meaning between producer and audience.
- Perspective — how point of view, voice, and standpoint shape interpretation.
- Transformation — how texts adapt, rewrite, and respond to other texts and contexts.
- Representation — how language and form (re)present reality, identities, and ideas.

The 5 Global Issue Fields of Inquiry (Required for the IO)

- Culture, identity and community
- Beliefs, values and education
- Politics, power and justice
- Art, creativity and the imagination
- Science, technology and the environment
